

HOLD THE DATE FOR HAITI JULY 2014

Come experience HAITI—the second oldest country in the Western Hemisphere—a land of proud peasants, enterprising men and women, and dedicated educators, healers and human rights activists. In collaboration with The Philanthropy Workshop, The Haiti Fund at the Boston Foundation invites you to witness the stark beauty of this land, its rich culture, complex history, and indomitable people.

Haiti Fund staff Pierre Noel and Ferry Cadet, and Haiti Fund Co-founder and TPW member Karen Keating Ansara, will expose you to successful models of Haitian-led systemic and grassroots change in urban and rural contexts. Site visits will concentrate on education, health care, agriculture, livelihoods and community planning. Travelers will explore the power dynamics that have stymied and propelled the post-earthquake reconstruction via meetings with government leaders and women's rights, children's rights and civil rights activists.

You can expect an unforgettable journey coordinated by expert philanthropy travel consultants for TPWW: Andrea Atkinson of Scopa Group and Katherine Redington of Elevate Destinations.

The core trip from July 14-19 will span the Central Plateau, West, and South Departments (regions) of Haiti, including an interior flight and boat trip to the enchanting, unspoiled island of Ile-a-Vache. An optional excursion by plane to Cap Haitien in the North on July 19-21 will take travelers to the incomparable Citadelle, Haiti's fortress and national treasure; a women's candle-making enterprise, Prosperity Catalyst; a vibrant peasant organization; and a potential tour of the USAID-funded Caracol Industrial Park.

DATES: Monday, July 14 through Sunday, July 19; extension July 19-21.
Travel commitments required by April 30.

TOTAL COST: $4,250 pp + optional $500 donation for site visits and an additional $1,750 for the trip extension.
